The A Way - University Tutoring Academy

Fictional business profile for the C3 agent assignment

Business identity

The A Way is a fictional university tutoring academy that helps university students understand difficult course material, plan study time, and prepare for assessments.

Mission

The A Way makes structured, approachable academic support easier to find while being honest about what is and is not currently confirmed.

Services

- Course-focused tutoring and concept review
- Study planning and exam preparation
- Follow-up support for students who express interest
- Academic outreach and teaching-assistant collaboration
- Planning information about sessions and expected tuition

Team

The fictional demo team consists of Maya Haddad, cofounder and academic programs lead; Omar Khoury, cofounder and operations lead; and a network of course tutors and teaching assistants. These names are fictional demo facts for this assignment and do not identify real staff or current assignments.

Unique value proposition

The A Way combines course-aware tutoring support with transparent escalation: students receive clear answers from documented academy information, while unconfirmed prices, schedules, tutors, capacity, and availability are labeled as unavailable or unconfirmed instead of being guessed.

Course catalog

The reusable catalog includes: EECE 210, EECE 230, EECE 231, EECE 330, EECE 442, CMPS 201, CMPS 203, and CMPS 211.

Catalog and active offerings

These codes identify catalog courses only. The catalog is not proof that a course is currently open for registration. No active semester offerings are confirmed in this local demo dataset. Prices, schedules, tutors, capacity, registration status, and student enrollment are unavailable or unconfirmed unless an explicitly verified active-offering record is added.

Student-facing boundaries

This assistant can explain documented academy capabilities and record a student interest or feedback in the local demo runtime. It does not perform official registration, process real payments, access administrator records, provide financial reporting, or operate student/tutor portals.

Document status: Fictional demo business profile. No live pricing, schedule, tutor, capacity, registration, or enrollment data is asserted.
